Jiffy-Jell

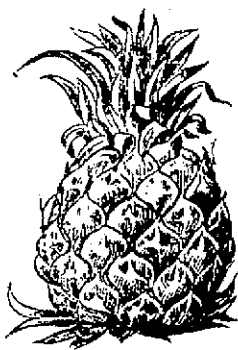

For Desserts and Salads
Fruit Flavors In Glass—A Vial In Each Package

A Surprise Dessert Like Nothing That You Know

Jiffy-Jell is a distinctive dainty, unlike anything else you know. It is made with a rare-grade gelatine, which the owners of Jiffy-Jell make and control. It costs twice as much as the common.

In these days, when even low-grade gelatine is almost unobtainable, this extra grade is very rare indeed.

Real Fruit Creations

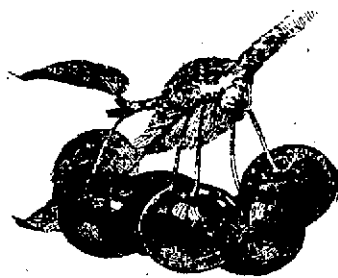

Then Jiffy-Jell flavors are made from the fruit itself. Not one is artificial.

They come sealed in glass—a vial in each package—so they keep their fresh-fruit taste. They do not come mixed with the powder.

A wealth of fruit flavor appears in every dessert. We use half a ripe pineapple, for instance, to make the flavor for one pineapple Jiffy-Jell dainty.

So Jiffy-Jell desserts and salads taste like fresh-fruit creations. To make them, you simply add boiling water. When the jell has partly cooled, stir in the bottle of flavor. So the flavor isn't scalded. Then let it jell. When you get our molds, cool the jell in them.

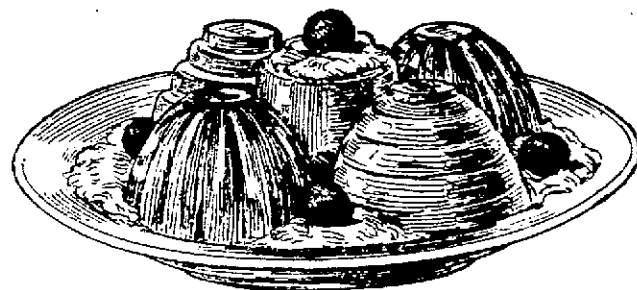

Add fruit, if you wish, nuts, chocolate or whipped cream. But Jiffy-Jell alone with the fruit flavor is a delightful dainty.

For salads, use Lime Jiffy-Jell, with flavor made from lime fruit. It is tart, zesty and green. Mix the jell with your salad, or mix your salad into the jell before cooling.

Make Mint Jiffy-Jell from mint flavor—made from fresh mint leaves. It makes a garnish jell with a wealth of flavor, for cold meats, lambs, etc.

The results will amaze you. They mean quick desserts which taste like crushed fruit dainties. They mean wonderful salads and garnishes. All at your instant command and very economical. One package of Jiffy-Jell serves a big family.

When you know Jiffy-Jell, a thousand meals will be made more delightful by it.

Dear Madam:
 I have spent 18 years in learning how to make a dessert like Jiffy-Jell. Now it is delighting millions, and I want you to enjoy it. You will never believe how it differs from old kinds until you actually serve it. So we make this offer, to let you find it out. It means six joyous meals for you, and six molds which will last a lifetime. Then you will know. Don't let this chance go by.

13 CERTIFICATIONS NEARLY COMPLETE DISTRICT'S QUOTA

But Few More to be Heard From—District Already Has Excess Over Number Required.

With sixty-five percent of the men called in the first draft from the district already in training at Camp Grant, and with a large field from which to make the selection of the next thirty-five percent which will complete the quota, certification from the district board have been received for thirteen more men. The last list practically completes that of this district, as the scattering certification expected from the higher board at Madison.

Previous to the receipt of the additional certifications, printed below, the local board had received one hundred and fifty-four names as being fit for military service. The quota is but one hundred and fifty-two, and with an excess there is no danger that another list will have to be called for examination to complete the first quota.

But few appeals have been made to the president from this district, and but little dissatisfaction with the decisions of the two draft boards has been evidenced. None of the men sent to Camp Grant have been returned as being in any way physically disqualified.

Notices of their fitness for service and of such certification by both boards will be sent to the thirteen men this afternoon, though they are not ordered to report for active duty. Just when the next increment will be ordered out is not known by draft officials at this time. It was first intended to take forty percent as to the first quota, but inadequate accommodations prevented this, and the average throughout the entire country was from twenty to twenty-five per cent.

The list of those certified follows: The order of call is followed by the name, the address and the serial number of each selected man:

- 132—William Edw. Geary, Evansville, Ind.—2285.
192—August A. P. Alwin, Evansville, Ind.—820.
430—Chris Thomsen, Edgerton—292.
232—Clark H. Siedhoff, Milton—2158.

19 SEEK POSITION AT THE POOR FARM

Superintendent of County Farm to Succeed Cash Whipple is in Great Demand.

With nineteen applicants for the position of superintendent of the County Poor farm, the three trustees of that institution contemplate a vigorous session before the selection is made. As the applicants have been coming in thick and fast for some time, and at the monthly meeting held at the farm recently it was decided that the choice would probably be made on the fifteenth of this month.

C. H. Whipple, present incumbent, tendered his resignation last February, but it is not certain that he will discontinue his work at the farm. The decision will be up to C. E. Lang, trustee of Fulton, Robert Moore of Bradford, and F. F. Livermore of Beloit, who constitute the board of trustees.

WOMAN SENTENCED FOR BEING DRUNK

Mrs. Abbie Schumacher Gets a Ten Day Sentence—Federal Authorities Take Case of Leslie Peters.

But one case was disposed of this morning by Judge Maxfield in the municipal court, that being the case of Mrs. Abbie Schumacher who was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness.

She was arrested in an intoxicated condition at one of the railroad stations Tuesday evening and taken to the city hall. Judge Maxfield gave her a sentence of ten days in the county jail.

Tuesday afternoon James Cantwell was brought before Judge Maxfield and read the information of his case in which he was charged with failing to support his four year old son Raymond. He waived his examination and entered a plea of guilty to the charge and was given his sentence.

After considering the case and getting full information on the particulars, Judge Maxfield sentenced him to one year in the county jail.

The case of Leslie Peters, who was brought into court on a charge of petty larceny on Monday and who could not present a registration card in conformity with the conscription law, is gradually being brought to a close. Federal authorities from Madison immediately took the case in hand when the information was received from this city and have found that Peters registered for the draft in Evansville and not in Janesville.

A deputy from the marshal's office is in the city today and questioned Peters. On looking over the records it was found that Peters had registered as he said in Evansville.

The question which now remains to be settled is based on the difference in ages given by Peters at the time of his registration and at the time he was brought into court. He registered at 25 years of age and told the judge that he was 26, which is his correct age.

Peters will be taken to Madison today and if his registration difficulties are straightened out he will be returned to the jail in this city to await his punishment on the charge of petty larceny.

Parentage and the State.

Parentage rightly undertaken is a service as well as a duty to the world, carrying with it not only obligations but a claim, the strongest of claims, upon the whole community. It must be paid for like any other public service; in any completely civilized state it must be sustained, rewarded and controlled. And this is to be done, not to supersede the love, pride and conscience of the parent, but to supplement, encourage and maintain it.—H. G. Wells.

CITY CAMPAIGNERS FOR LIBERTY LOAN ARRANGE MEETINGS

Conference of All Factory Superintendents and Foremen and Meet- of Teams Planned.

With the organization of the city's forces for the Liberty loan campaign progressing rapidly under the direction of A. P. Lovejoy and his assistant, Joseph M. Connors, two meetings of importance have been arranged as preparatory to the actual work of solicitation which will be well under way by the first of next week.

Tomorrow evening, probably at the Commercial club, the superintendents and foremen of all factories and manufacturing establishments in the city will gather with the factory committee to outline the work to be done under them. Roy Wisner is chairman of the committee, with Charles A. Muggleton as vice chairman, together with five or six men to be named by them. It is expected that the organization of the factory solicitation, will be worked out along lines agreed upon by them and the representatives of the concerns, who, being closest to the men, are in a position to advise the most adequate means of reaching the largest number of men effectively with a minimum of time.

Mr. Muggleton, general chairman for the county, will address the conference. Another meeting of great importance will be that of the campaign teams, to be held Friday afternoon at half past four in Library hall. Here all of the men and women of the city who have been designated by the several captains to work in the big drive will assemble to receive instructions as to the work and learn every detail of the bond, its necessity, the method of flotation, and other information essential to efficiency in securing purchasers for the war bonds.

Under the direction of Mrs. H. A. Ford, who was elected as general chairman for the women of the city, teams who will conduct the canvass in the residential districts have been named. In the first ward, two teams will work, headed by Mrs. Harry McNamara and Mrs. Frank A. Spoon; Mrs. Francis C. Grant will captain the second ward team, while Mrs. S. M. Smith and Mrs. Louis Levy will head the two teams in the third ward. Mrs. F. A. Capelle is captain of the fourth ward team, and in the fifth ward Mrs. James York, with Mrs. Eugene Roeding as assistant chairman, will be the team captain.

GERMAN AIRMAN DROPS WREATH FOR BROTHER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

"Behind British Lines" in France, Oct. 3.—A German airplane was brought down by the British lines this week after a battle lasting nearly an hour. The next morning a German machine came hovering over the same spot and maneuvered for a position. It was promptly attacked, but returned to the German lines after dropping overboard something which was seen to fall near an evacuated village.

Two British soldiers, who were sent to find out what had dropped, returned with a beautiful wreath nearly three feet in diameter. To the wreath was attached a note asking the British airman to place it on the grave of the dead pilot.

"The officer you have buried was my brother," said the note. "I spent six happy years working in a London bank. I know you honor the dead. Please do this little service for me." The wreath was deposited as requested on the grave of the dead German airman.

Giving the Lie in Georgia.

Chief Justice Hill of the supreme court of Georgia said in Rumsey against Bullard: "All the judges of this court, being 'to the manner born,' are willing to take judicial cognizance of a fact which as individuals they all well know, that in Georgia to call a man a liar, even without raising a stick, usually provokes a breach of the peace, and most generally brings on a fight. There may be exceptions to this rule, but they are rare exceptions, and find little nourishment in our Southern soil and beneath our Southern skies."

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

It is announced from Hollywood, Cal., that Rhea Mitchell will shortly make her debut at the head of her own company in a modern morality play. She has arranged to star in at least six productions per year.

Miss Mitchell is twenty-one years of age, and has been connected with the stage and screen since her fifteenth year. She was born in Portland, Ore. At the age of fifteen her family moved to Spokane, where she made her first appearance on the stage, playing the ingenuite role in "The Blue Mouse," produced by the Baker Stock company.

In the fall of 1915, Miss Mitchell made her first appearance in a two-reel production called "A New England Idyll." She joined the American Film company at Santa Barbara in 1917. Miss Mitchell's last appearance was in a special production called "Whither Thou Goest," in which she made a striking personal hit as co-star with Orla Johnson.

ADE REVERSES PRODIGAL STORY

"The Wandering Boy and the Wayward Parents" is the second of the new series of movie comedies made from the fables of George Ade. This reverses the story of the prodigal.

The hero is a young man who returns home from college, and then leaves home to brave the dangers of the so-called wicked city.

There he resists the temptation to go to musical comedies. He makes in uplift work.

But fashions of the smart set have been introduced in the town where he was born, and his parents have been unable to resist them.

When he goes home on a visit he finds his father is head of the house committee of a fashionable club that runs a blind eye. So he returns to the pure city, and weds a girl who likes to read aloud from the dramas of Maelstrom.

After a long but fruitless attempt to drown his sorrows (which he discovered were all expert swimmers), Tweezers Bottle returned to Scargy's dime museum, where he was official announcer. A crowd already had collected and was impatiently waiting to be informed of the virtues and biography of the fat lady, living skeleton, the wild man from Skickelbasset, the sword swallower, and the boa constrictor sixty feet long and two feet thick.

Endeavoring to collect his thoughts, in which the freaks seemed jumbled every which way, Tweezers Bottle ascended the fat lady's platform.

"Ladies and gents," he began as he expertly disguised a hiccup as a cough. "It is my privilege to present to you first, this afternoon, Luella Spralls, 640 pounds in the shade of avoirdupois, beauty, and (hic) such ferocity that it required the assistance of eighty natives to capture her in her native jungles of Skickelbasset, where she swallows knives, ladies and hic-gents, nineteen inches long. GIANT SQUASHES RAISED IN DANE COUNTY IN 1844

Four Squashes Produced by William Clark Weighed Three Hundred Twenty-five Pounds.

As the garden and truck farming season throughout Wisconsin draws to a close, numerous reports are heard of the banner yields produced in every section of the state. But it is doubtful whether one of the records established by an early settler of Dane county, during the days when Wisconsin was still a territory, will be equalled. William H. Clark of Sun Prairie had for years been a successful gardener, and according to the files of the Wisconsin Argus preserved in the State Historical Library, he had secured a record in 1844. One of which weighed seventy pounds, another seventy-six, another eighty-nine, and the fourth one ninety pounds, making a total weight of three hundred twenty-five pounds. In the same issue of the paper, report is made of another farmer residing near Mr. Clark who had on exhibit a load of turnips, many of which measured over three feet in circumference.

SELL SEIZED SHIPS TO MAKE UP LOSSES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, Oct. 3.—Vessels captured or seized by Great Britain from her enemies during the war "in restitution and plunder of the countries and shipping of the enemy" should be sold and the proceeds applied as part of the war indemnity, in the opinion of members of the chambers of shipping of the United Kingdom and of the Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association. This committee was appointed to ascertain what Great Britain's trade policy should be after the conclusion of the war. They recommend that the funds derived from the sale of enemy vessels taken in war should not be applied to reimburse British shipping owners or underwriters for lost ships but should go to the general indemnity fund.

The committee asserts that, in determining Britain's trade policy to be adopted after the war, it should be the first care of the state to do nothing to impair the "pre-eminent position the United Kingdom holds in the international trade of the world."

"Our manufacturing power, our commerce and our shipping," the committee stated, "have been established for the world's trade and no smaller field can provide scope for their employment. To maintain the position the nation must with the utmost possible speed after peace is restored bring back its fighting forces into productive industry, so as to re-establish its manufacturing power and to replace the war wastage in its shipping."

The ruling policy of our trade policy after the war should consist in the maintenance for each individual citizen of the fullest possible opportunities for the exercise of his energies and enterprise in the markets of the world. We are satisfied that so far as shipping is concerned, and from any exceptional case for establishing a new trade, it can only hold its own in competition with the world free from state control, and therefore free from state assistance, and that

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Among the drafted men who left here recently was a dear friend of mine. He asked me to go and see his mother while he was gone. Shall I go, and how shall I open the conversation?

I think it would be a lovely thing for you to try to bring cheer into the life of this man's mother while he is away. For she'll be very lonely some at times, you know and will be glad to talk to one who is interested in her boy. It will not be hard to find topics of conversation of interest to her, for she will be interested in anything pertaining to her son. You might stop in for a very few minutes some day at first. After introducing yourself, ask if she has heard from her boy. I can tell her any news you have heard. You will not find it difficult.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been engaged to a young man for some time. We were to be married in June, but I would not have the idea of marrying a slacker and he would not marry to escape serving his country. He was not drafted, but my friends tell me there is to be an order draft in January. So I don't know whether we would be safe in marrying now or not.

DOUBTFUL
As all young men of draft age are to be examined soon as to their physical fitness, you might wait a while longer. Then you will know positively if he is subject to draft. Then it is for you to decide. But if I loved a young man I would not put off my marriage till after the war; I would marry him now.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been engaged to a young man for three months, but he has one bad fault. He goes to saloons very often. I have asked him to stop now twice. Each time he promised but each time broke his promise. I just hate drunkards, and there are other men who would like to go with me, but I love this man very dearly. Please advise me what to do; I am afraid of my future life if I marry him. A LITTLE BLINDNESS.

And well you may be afraid. My dear, if he will not give up drink now you can not expect him to later. The chances for a happy life with him would be very small. He you want drunkard to be the father of your children? Then do not marry him until he has proved that he will give it up for good.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) If you dance with a young man you have never met before, what is proper to say to him when the dance is over? (2) If you go to a dance with a young man and he doesn't act nice to you but spends all his time with another girl and you meet a nice young man who acts small, he is very fond of you, would it be all right to accept this second man's invitation to take you home? If you do, has the first young man any right to be angry about it?

(3) I have a black dress with some red trimmings on it. It is not worn out at all, but is longer than they wear them this year. It has a belt and quite a large buckle. Do you think I could shorten it and wear it again this winter? Or would it look funny fixed over?

LOUISE L.
(1) When the dance number is over and he takes you back to your next partner or to a place to sit down he should say to you that he has enjoyed the dance or thank you for the ride. If he says "I have enjoyed the dance" it is not necessary for you to say anything unless he does. When he thanks you, say that you enjoyed it too.

(2) You should have some sort of understanding with the young man who took you to the dance that he is to pay more attention to you. If he seems to neglect you, ask him if he intends to take you home. If he says no, then accept the second young man's invitation. If the first young man says he does intend to take you home when the dance is over you must let him. If you do go with the second young man it is direct insult to the man who brought you and he will of course feel hurt.

(3) The dress can probably be shortened easily, and the colors are good for this year. I should think it would look quite all right for this winter.

HEALTH TALKS

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

THE FEATHERWEIGHTS

Heaven, we imagine, must be a place where the fat shall be lean and the lean shall be fat. With the exception of comparatively rare instances of congenital (hereditary) ductless gland deficiencies, no man or woman need be too fat. We were going to say "thin" or "woman need to be too skinny" either, but our nerve fails us. It is so easy to be a fat person how to grow thin, and still easier for a fat person to do it. But we frankly admit that the business of fattening up a constitution featherweight is no trifling job.

New York physician serving on one of the draft boards has been asked to the effect that rejection of candidates on the score of insufficient weight ought to be unnecessary, since a tonic would probably build up most of the skinny men in a short time. The only weak point in the doctor's laudable scheme is that he failed to specify the tonic. We have seen the results of a large number of fads, but no such remedy has ever disclosed itself to our eager scrutiny.

Any one who is too fat eats too much. That is undebatable. We don't care how much food our fat friends feel about it, nor how birdlike their appetites may really be; they eat more than their metabolism demands. But the remedy does not hold true. Many featherweight eat like a horse yet remains a featherweight nevertheless. Sometimes, indeed, we have seen the weight increase very readily when the diet was considerably reduced for a few weeks, which tends to show that an excess of food may be the burden which uses up energy that would otherwise be stored as fat.

There are certain general rules to be followed by young folks who are too skinny and anxious to put on weight. The first morning don't indulge in strenuous exercise. Acquire the habit of good posture in standing, walking or sitting. Drink water and other wholesome beverages freely but do not wash down morsels of food with liquids. Let mastication be complete before you drink. Include in the diet a generous ration of sugar. Eat irregularly. Always eat lunch at bedtime. Crackers and milk, bread and milk, a sandwich, or bread and butter and sugar on. Fats and greasy foods are not only digestible but fat is essential and should be avoided because of any ancient prejudice against them. Avoid cold baths; a warm or tepid bath is quite as healthful and favors the development of weight. Use whole cereals, such as whole wheat (seed wheat), whole corn, and unpolished rice. These natural foods contain vitamins which aid digestion, improve the blood and render cathartics unnecessary.

Many young persons are underweight by reason of some latent constitutional disease, such as tuberculosis, and therefore it is always wise to have a thorough physical examination.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Plaster of Paris is Stiff Stuff.
When one has what several doctors call ankylosis, and has worn a plaster of Paris cast for months on the left knee, and finds the knee quite stiff when the cast is removed, would you consider the stiffness due to the cast or to the disease of the joint? Is there any remedy which would restore the movement to a joint rendered perfectly stiff? W. H.

Answer—Plaster of Paris is certainly stiff, but it is a very good material for a cast. The stiffness of the joint is due to the disease of the joint, and not to the cast. There is no remedy which would restore the movement to a joint rendered perfectly stiff.

MEATLESS DAY WAS OBSERVED IN CAFES

In Only One Case Was a Disgruntled Customer Found.

A strict observance of the meatless day was noted in the city yesterday by the various hotels and restaurants. With the exception of the Apollo Cafe, on West Milwaukee street, there were no meats offered on their various menus as far as could be learned. And that people had known of the meaning of the meatless day, as requested by the state authorities, was also evident. Although some had forgotten about the day, since the movement was only inaugurated last week, still when the fact was mentioned, everyone seemed to know about it and were perfectly willing to co-operate in making the plan a successful one. The place was it reported that a only one place was left because meat was not served. The party in the case was a "big fat foreigner" and he made a great bluster that his money could buy him anything he wanted. He was quietly told that it couldn't buy him meat in that place, and he left, amid a chorus of laughter from the other guests. The substitutes served in the place of meat were much the same as last week. Except that the markets were warned of the extra demand for fish for the day and had a better stock on hand than usual. Trout, halibut, salmon, and choosie were all used in various ways to take the place of meat, and eggs, in spite of their high prices, were the main reliance. Perhaps baked trout and counters was the favorite dish served at the hotels, although escalloped oysters was a close second. The following sample luncheon was served at the small cafes which gave an idea of the menu offered. Salmon loaf or baked beans, stewed or sliced tomatoes, baked sweet potatoes and vegetable soup, besides the regular vegetable salad, usually supplied. Vegetables were largely used on the menus and macaroni with cheese and baked beans were favorites with many. There was much less friction, the service was much less hurried and not so much as last week. The state authorities had also made it easier by supplying cards to the business stalling different places of business stalling that it was a "Member of the Conservation League." Thus it was any question raised over the matter could be called to the card as showing the authority of the state, as showing the different establishments also were better posted by means of literature sent them by the state to answer questions in regard to the movement, and to give more intelligent co-operation.

The one exception to the rule, as far as could be learned, was the Apollo Cafe—said that they should do as they pleased in regard to what they served. Janesville may well be proud of the hearty support given the state in this direction by the business houses of the city. The report from Wisconsin, on last week's observance of the day, was one of the best sent in, by any state. And this week it will be even better, as information is more widely disseminated of what the movement really means and the observance of the day has been more general. A local and patriotic business house will take pride in doing everything possible that the government asks of him to aid in the present national crisis.

The Business of Living

Bertram Tells the Folks at Home How the French Children Revere Our Sam Mies.

"Dear Folks at Home: We are in our new quarters; moved yesterday. We occupy barracks recently vacated by the French and are to stay here for the final touches of our military education. The quarters are very comfortable and have been all renovated for our occupation. The men are in fine spirits and are so eager to get into the fray that the greatest difficulty will be in holding them to the schedule. You see, every move is very carefully calculated and is worked out like a problem. The men do a certain amount and stop. Sometimes it is a great temptation to go on when the object of the attack has been easily gained, but they are not allowed to do it. Every possible thing is done to conserve the life of the men.

"I must tell you of a very affecting incident that happened yesterday. We marched through a little village. The news that the Sammies were coming had preceded us and all the town turned out to welcome us. The schools were closed and the children all dropped on their knees on the pavement when the flag passed as they did in Paris when the colors were first carried through that city. It was a pretty sight, those little people paying the flag such homage. They shouted 'Vive la France' as we passed and the boys full-throated 'Vive la France' was good to hear. The commander halted the men and they sang the Marseillaise, the children and populace joining in. It was some singing, let me tell you.

The French surely know how to teach their little folk patriotism. One little boy came up to our encampment one evening. The captain could speak French. He asked the boy how old he was and he replied, 'Six years before I can serve under the colors.' That was the thing he was living for; to grow up and serve his country. In Germany at the same time the little red heads are taught to repeat 'Der Kaiser ist ein lieber Mann.' I can not help wishing sometimes, that their faith in 'der lieber Mann' was not so unshakeable and entire.

The artillerymen are going into the trenches for actual practice in a short time, I understand. It can not come too soon. When I think how the beleaguered forts of France have suffered how the people have been bullied and terrorized I am filled with such a longing to get to work, to do what I can to free them from the brutal rule of their conquerors that I can think of nothing else. The people of the occupied territory are not allowed to receive any mail from their husbands and sons at the front. If a letter is found on them they are severely punished, and any one who is caught carrying a letter—just a common letter telling how their loved ones are faring—is killed unless he will reveal the name of the person sending and receiving letters. The French people are not allowed to lift their voices in the street. To sing a French song, especially if it is patriotic, would bring down unbelievable horrors on their sorrowing heads. It is so dreadful I do not expect to be believed. I must see you and explain for hours before you will take to the horrors of it all. I have all this from French soldiers. It is true.

"Good bye, dear ones. OUR BERTRAM."

The Woman Who Does Not Go Over Her Bills
You would hardly think she would exist in any but the richest classes; the woman who does not go over her bill.

But she exists everywhere among rich, poor and middle class folks. She is the dishonest tradesman's joy and the struggling husband's heaviest burden.

Of course one may trade with tradesmen of whose honesty one is absolutely sure. But What Tradesman Never Makes Mistakes?

But can one be equally sure that they never make a mistake? I trade with perfectly honest tradesmen. Last night I went over my bills for the past two weeks.

In one account I found a duplicated slip in some way or other my purchase of a dozen oranges and a half pint of cream had been charged twice. I also found a slip on which the amount of the day's purchases had been set down and then added in. It was a small matter (seventeen cents) but the same thing would have happened if it had been several dollars. Besides which the seventeen cents is as valuable to me as the grocer and I am not ashamed to ask for it.

He Added in The Day Of The Month
On another bill I found that the fruit man had added in the day of the month (which happened to be thirty). I wanted that thirty cents too.

These are small items but on one bill this summer I found some one hundred charged up at so much the hundred charged instead of the thousand and a mistake which would have lost me about seven dollars.

Doubtless the thrifty woman who always goes over her bills is questioning the existence of any other sort of woman. But I know some of them personally and in a magazine the other day I read an article which gives an amusing (if it were not so horrifying) proof of her common sense.

GREECE PURCHASED GOLD BRICK IN BIG GERMAN WAR LOAN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Athens, Oct. 3.—The German advance of $30,000,000 in the recent government of King Constantine was a financial transaction quite out of the ordinary, as now developed under the German scrutiny of the Venizelos government which displaced the Constantine regime.

A statement by M. Venizelos himself, the peculiar features were: While a large sum was involved, yet no real money passed from Berlin to Athens, it was all a credit transaction to be settled "after the war."

Also, although no money passed, Germany has itself obligated for this $20,000,000, and is paying interest on it at 6 per cent. Finally, as stated by Venizelos, the depreciation of the German mark was such that of the $20,000,000 only $12,000,000 was realized making a net loss of $8,000,000.

The German advance was made about a year ago, at the time the Constantine ministry needed funds to pay the army which it had mobilized. For some reason, however, it was decided to make it a secret transaction and not inscribe it in the budget or report it to parliament along with the entire allied war effort.

The attitude was about the time the German army was demanding the demobilization of the Greek army, which probably accounts for the loan being kept secret.

HOW TRACKWALKER SHOWS HIS LOYALTY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Ottawa, Mich., Oct. 3.—Track walking may not appear to many people as a patriotic sort of job. It didn't to me when the United States first entered the war. But since then I have seen possibilities in it that make me believe that we trackmen have it within our power to express a brand of patriotism that is well worth while. For it is over the rails we carry the coal, the iron, the steel, the munitions and all the other things needed by this country and the allies are transported; and it is upon our vigilance and care that the safety of the trains bearing these necessities very largely depends.

By watching out for and repairing breaks and damages in rails or ties—conditions that might plunge a whole trainload of soldiers or destroy the ruin thousands of dollars worth of war supplies—isn't the only kind of patriotic work at our disposal. By being careful and economical with materials, getting the most out of every spike and tie, and by saving materials that are becoming more and more difficult for the railroads to secure, and thereby avert waste and delay.

There is another bit of conservation work that we trackmen are doing which may be of interest to the public. We are keeping all right of way fences in good repair so as to reduce the amount of livestock that is killed by trains.

To be sure, none of these things are new to our line of work. But we are trying to do them a little better now for the sake of Uncle Sam. It's a small part to play in a war that involves practically the whole world, but to man like myself, who has seen fifty-three years of service, to cover the same stretch of track, the patriotic possibilities in the job make it lose some of its monotony. And I reckon the thousands of other men who walk the tracks daily for the railroad feel the same as I do.

RIDE STUDENT ON RAIL FOR ALLEGED DISLOYALTY

Milwaukee, Oct. 3.—Whitford Payne, a student at Milwaukee Normal school and a resident of Wauwatosa, was ridden on a rail around Wauwatosa Monday night by about 25 young men. One of the boys who took part in the affair said their action was the result of alleged unpatriotic actions of the part of Payne.

Rev. Charles A. Payne, father of the boy, says the attack was the outcome of an old grudge.

The clergyman has been making patriotic addresses throughout the west on the Chautauqua circuit all summer. So good was the impression he made that he was summoned to Washington and arrangements were made to have him make a three weeks' tour of the army cantonments to address the soldiers.

Will Raise $1,000,000.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 3.—Bankers of La Crosse decided at a meeting that they would attempt to subscribe for $1,000,000 of the new liberty loan of which the Minneapolis district must raise slightly more than $100,000,000.

Injured in Wreck.

Horicon, Oct. 3.—M. Cawley, fireman, residing in Milwaukee, was badly scalded in a head-on freight collision in the local yards of the Milwaukee railroad. Eight cars of merchandise caught fire when a carload of matches were ignited by the crash and set all the wreckage aflame. Traffic was delayed for eight hours by the wreck.

Old Banker Buried.

Columbus, Oct. 3.—John E. Wheeler, 67, president of the Farmers' and Merchants' Union bank here for many years, who died here after a brief illness was buried today (Wednesday) at Elkhorn. The bank of which he was the head, was founded in 1891 by his father, John J. Wheeler, president of the Wisconsin Bankers' association.

It was first intended that the quota which were mobilized should consist of sixty men as had the previous one, but inadequate accommodations at the cantonment forced a reduction of one-half, and as a consequence but thirty men left today.

MUST SAVE HENS TO PREVENT A SHORTAGE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 3.—If the American poultry supply is not to be depleted next year, farmers must refrain from disposing of their stock this fall.

Immediate action, to prevent undue fluctuations in the price of high market prices and high cost of feed, is necessary, according to Grant M. Curtis, Chicago, who was one of the chief speakers at the recent convention of the American Poultry association here.

The convention requested Herbert Hoover to take some immediate action to reduce the cost of poultry feeds. This, chicken men say, is necessary if the supply of poultry is to be normal next year.

Now is the time, breeders say, to make careful selections of a stock for feeding during the winter and for breeding. It is pointed out that market prices for eggs will guarantee breeders adequate returns for feeding good stock through the winter under normal conditions.

Efficiency is the watchword of the poultry raisers and this applies to the hens.

When that won't lay over sixty eggs a year isn't worth keeping," said H. Hicks, a prominent eastern breeder. "The efficient poultry man will weed out of his flock all hens that will not average 200 eggs a year."

SAVE THE SEED CORN.

(By Allen B. West.)

Although Rock county has escaped the severe frosts that have visited some of the other counties of the state enough of her corn has been injured so that the seed corn situation is beginning to look serious and to make it imperative that all farmers having corn fit for seed harvest all they can for that purpose, and having harvested it, can care for it carefully. In so doing they are pretty sure to have a crop that will bring them good returns next spring and not only that they have the consciousness of doing a real service to their county. Without home grown seed corn the crop of 1918 in Rock county is sure to be hampered, so all corn fit for seed must be regarded as precious.

Now is the Time to Save Seed Corn. The selection of the ears should be at once for we do not know how soon a freezing night may cause injury, and we cannot afford to run any risks. The success of next year's crop will probably depend more upon the quality of the seed than upon any other factor, so now is the time to insure a good crop for next year.

The best way to select the corn is to go through the field and note the condition of the stalk upon which the corn grows, making the selection. This may be easily done if one will carry a sack over the shoulder, so as to have both hands free, and arranged with a wide mouth convenient for dropping the ears in the sack. As one walks through the field he should note:

1. The character of the stalk. Corn should be selected from large, sturdy stalks, with leaves broad and well distributed; the plants free from rust, smut or suckers.

2. The height of the hill. Do not select corn from a hill by itself or from one in a hill with a weak or barren stalk.

3. The height of the ears on the stalk. Choose those growing at medium height. The highest ears produce late corn. With the risk of early frosts always present we must have early maturing ears, so we do not want those growing too high. Neither do we want those ears growing lowest on the stalk, for these, though they ripen early, have shallow kernels with wide furrows between the rows.

4. The way the ears hang on the stalk. Ears that stand upright, do not shed water as well as those which droop over, so select the ones that droop over so that the tips are turned downward.

5. The shank. Ears with long shanks are apt to be damaged and are hard to husk. Take those with short shanks. The husk should cover the tip well so as to protect it from injury and decay.

If it extends too far it will be closed and produces ears difficult to husk. This point, however, is not so important as some others, especially when the corn is to be used for silo, and in case of a shortage of seed may well be ignored.

When the corn is picked it should be husked and placed where it has a free circulation of air about it. It should never be left in a pile on the ground or in the barn.

Do Not Hang in the Sun.

The hot sun, especially if reflected from the side of a building, injures the germ.

Should Be Protected From Weather.

Rain and frost are enemies to seed corn. Consequently it should not be hung on the windmill frame, nor under an open shed.

Put the corn where it will dry and keep dry. A rack may be made for it or purchased, but a simple and convenient way of storing it is to tie it up in burlap sacks, each containing from twelve to fifteen ears, and can be suspended from rafters or from nails driven in the rafters. A garret or loft over the kitchen is a good place to store the corn; or if one has a furnace the furnace room makes a good place.

Wherever it is put, however, the utmost care should be taken to see that it is protected from mice. Not much use to go to all the trouble of selection of the corn and let the mice have it.

GOOD ROADS IN NATIONAL DEFENSE

Gigantic Scheme of Permanent Hard Highways.

GERMANY'S GREAT SYSTEM

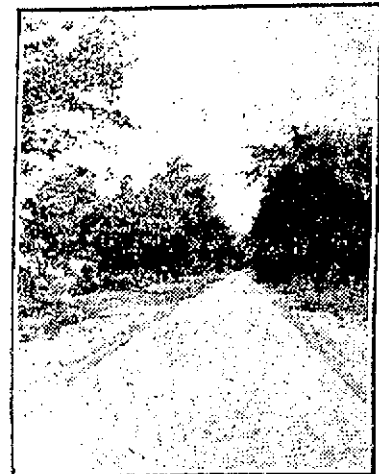

Proposed Road Plan For This Country Has a Dual Object—A Necessity From a Military Point of View, Also Will Aid In Solving Food Problem.

A gigantic system of permanent hard roads, constructed for the possible transportation of heavy military transports, is now considered an indispensable part of America's great preparedness scheme—a plan of such magnitude that it would have been scoffed at as a dream only a few years ago.

But this proposed road system has a dual object. While it is considered a necessity from a military point of view, a no smaller consideration is the effect it will have on the food supply of the country.

Such a system is urged by all departments of the government on the grounds of economic necessity. Experts who have made a study of the road situation claim that the economic waste caused by the delay and increased cost of getting farm produce to markets is too great to longer be endured if the United States is to live up to its slogan of preparedness, and that can only be lived up to by efficiency.

The fact that the United States government is putting its hand to the slowly revolving wheel of road building will hasten the work that is moving in the various states. It will mean quicker and better roads at a much lower cost per mile. The best engineers in the country will direct the work, and Uncle Sam will... to it that he gets a dollar's worth of road for every dollar invested.

To be sure, each state will participate in the expense, probably following the same line of state and national aid as is now being followed in Missouri, Illinois and other states. By this plan the state puts up an equal amount with any county, limited, of course, to so much per year per county, and the national government then "ratchets dollars" with the state, putting up an amount equal to the state's total good roads funds. In this way the original amount raised by the country is multiplied four times.

But the work probably will be done under the direction of the federal engineers.

To every state in the Union either the war department or the agricultural department, working hand in hand on the plan, has sent a representative. These representatives have studied the situation in the particular states to which they were assigned, learning where the centers of supply are located and what the road conditions are from these food supply centers to the market.

Each was instructed to pay special attention to the mineral resources, whether developed or undeveloped, and to learn what facilities are offered for their reaching a market.

This was the food conservation end of it, which is perhaps after all more important than the military feature, for we have discovered that lack of food is just as deadly as bullets.

But the military feature of the permanent road question is not to be laughed down.

Military experts say that without a system of hard roads Germany would by now have lost the war. These roads, as perfectly built as it is possible for a road to be and kept in perfect condition, permitted the quick transportation of its military equipment. It made easy the transportation of supplies and munitions by auto truck. Railway congestion would have made it impossible to have moved these vast supplies by rail alone.

It is Germany's unsurpassed system of roads that has been one of the big factors in making her what she is. And America has had to learn this lesson.

America does not expect to ever be invaded, but the past four years show us that no country is secure—that anything may happen. It is the preparation for things, we know not what that is going on now.

England especially has spent the past three years in learning the truth of the old maxim about looking the barn door after the horse is stolen.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES IN GRADE SCHOOLS OF STATE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Oct. 3.—Compared with the large number of high schools in the state only in a few are foreign languages taught in the grades and in some of these it is probable that the courses may have been discontinued this year. The last report of State Superintendent C. P. Cary, just issued, shows that German is taught in the grades in five cities—La Crosse, Milwaukee, Ripon, River Falls and Sheboygan. In River Falls, German is taught in the grades by the special practicing teacher from the normal school.

Two cities—Milwaukee and River Falls—teach other foreign languages than German in the grades, says the report. In Milwaukee, Italian is taught in the Italian district, while in River Falls Latin is begun in the upper grades for children wishing to pursue this study in the high school. In 1914-15 218 schools under county superintendents taught foreign languages: 183 taught German; 22 Scandinavian; 10 Polish, and 3 some other foreign language.

While these are the latest figures that there are at the office of the state

LANDING OF BIG BALLOON CAUSES MUCH EXCITEMENT

The anchoring of the big government observation balloon here yesterday morning occasioned quite a ripple of excitement. Persons riding along the Janesville-Madison road where one can get an unobstructed view to the south-west across the marsh, had a fine view of the monstrous ship of the air. In many cases, the different ones who did see it thought they were "seeing things" did not, for the moment belief it was real. Just within the city limits to the east, the balloon with its eight occupants was not more than 700 feet above the earth, and calling down asked "What town is this?" Men replying said, "Evansville, Wisconsin. Where are you bound for?" "Madison" they replied. After landing, they explained that they knew by their compass that they were too far east for Madison. They then made ready to land dropping bags of sand as they went, and in a field on John Wall's farm in the town of Union, the huge ship was brought to the ground. When but a few feet from the earth, the eight men jumped to the ground. Mean-while, a number of people here had jumped into their cars and took chase. The crew was brought back to town in an automobile. The huge wicker basket and the balloon were also brought in. The airship—grey in color—was a monstrous one, carrying 30,000 pounds of gas, and the basket weighing about 900 pounds. Six of the eight young men in the crew are from Evansville. They told of the many funny things they saw as the day was breaking and it was light enough for them to see and be seen. Farmers going to their barns with lighted lanterns to do the morning chores. These men the crew in the balloon would shout to, asking where they were, and in every instance, after one started and starting started toward the heavens that foreign bird of passage, the man would take to his heels and run for shelter. To him, the German air invasion over our country had begun. The men had flashlights that they might see the compass to guide the balloon. They seemed to enjoy the trip immensely and although they did not know what cities they had passed over yet judging by their compass and the location of different cities, they could form a pretty good estimate. They felt sure that they sailed over Freeport, Ill. These men and their huge ship were subjects of curiosity and awe on the part of every young boy in Evansville, before they took their departure on the afternoon train on their return trip to St. Louis.
